WATERFOWL

Anatidae

In New Zealand, most introduced and native species of waterfowl are considered threatened or endangered. Each season, your Dusky and Game Council supports specific quays such as the Blue, Grebe and the allowable backup for each quay, and they are designed to maintain and enhance habitat status for waterfowl and native birds in captivity breeding programs for some threatened and rare species.